

Journal of Humanistic Mathematics

Volume 5 | Issue 1

January 2015

Intermediate Values

Philip Holmes
Princeton University

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarship.claremont.edu/jhm>

Recommended Citation

Holmes, P. "Intermediate Values," Journal of Humanistic Mathematics, Volume 5 Issue 1 (January 2015), pages 295-295. DOI: 10.5642/jhummath.201501.17 . Available at: <https://scholarship.claremont.edu/jhm/vol5/iss1/17>

©2015 by the authors. This work is licensed under a Creative Commons License.

JHM is an open access bi-annual journal sponsored by the Claremont Center for the Mathematical Sciences and published by the Claremont Colleges Library | ISSN 2159-8118 | <http://scholarship.claremont.edu/jhm/>

The editorial staff of JHM works hard to make sure the scholarship disseminated in JHM is accurate and upholds professional ethical guidelines. However the views and opinions expressed in each published manuscript belong exclusively to the individual contributor(s). The publisher and the editors do not endorse or accept responsibility for them. See <https://scholarship.claremont.edu/jhm/policies.html> for more information.

Intermediate Values¹

Philip Holmes

pholmes@math.princeton.edu

Coming from then continuously to where I find myself, I must have passed through every point between – uncountably many presents – each one lost the instant it passed.

But what's grasped at all is held
because of that endless flux underfoot, not on account of here and now. We see only what is presently remembered,
not what's present, which will, in time,

be known only by memory. Absent that,
the mind's landscape, each minute would be a blur of changing weather. Even today's lack of form will come to mark us,
dividing then from here, thing from nothing.

Past imperfectly constructs the present.
All that's lost, as now will shortly be,
sustains us, even though it hold no ground,
is gone sooner than a spoken word, dust blown away,
the glass drained and its ring dried on the table.

¹An earlier version of this poem appeared in The Shape of Content, edited by Chandler Davis, Marjorie Senechal and Jan Zwicky, A.K. Peters/CRC Press, Wellesley, MA, 2008.